Solution

With continuous year-round occupancy from both business and leisure travelers, the hotel's management team prioritized sustainable upgrades that would also deliver financial returns.

A key part of this effort was the installation of Verdant energy-saving thermostats throughout the property. These smart devices help lower energy consumption while maintaining guest comfort and encouraging monthly savings. However, what also accelerated the project's return on investment was the hotel's ability to leverage a generous state rebate program. This rebate significantly offset the upfront costs of the thermostats, enabling the property to recoup its investment quicker. By capitalizing on available incentives, the hotel not only enhanced sustainability but also maximized long-term cost savings.

Results

The team at Hilton Garden Inn achieved an impressive $11,100 in total rebate savings, representing a remarkable 20% reduction in the overall system cost. This significant rebate, combined with their energy management approach, enabled the property to recoup its investment in just 15 months. In addition to the rebate, the hotel is now saving $2,849 each month on its energy bills, showcasing the powerful impact of energy efficiency on both immediate and long-term savings.

"We appreciate how easy Verdant makes the rebate process. Deducting the rebate directly from the final invoice streamlines everything for us."

- Mark DeCario, Director of Purchasing

How do rebate programs work?

Rebate programs help property managers plan upgrades strategically, boosting energy efficiency while maximizing savings. Some programs require pre-approval, meaning applicants must apply and receive confirmation before purchasing and installing smart thermostats, this ensures eligibility.

Other programs allow rebates to be claimed after installation, letting you complete the setup before submitting your application.
